

How portable configuration works:

When prodatum launches, it will check if there is a directory called "prodatum-config" in the same directory where it was launched from. If there is such a directory, it will be used to store all configuration and sync files that would otherwise be saved to %APPDATA%\prodatum. This allows you to have a single prodatum folder that you can move around between different computers while keeping your configuration.